My policy stances

YIMBY!

We need to build more bloody houses! We must hold Labour to account and keep pushing for more homes with our successful infrastructure first approach.

A Champion for Local Government

Our party is built on local government. I would fight for the party to stand up strongly to Labour seeking to centralise power in Westminster and individual mayors.

Pushing for more ambitious LGBTQ+ Policies

The Lib Dems have a proud history of standing up for the LGBTQ+ community. In Councils and Westminster we must keep being ambitious and outspoken, especially as other parties are seeking to strip away rights for trans people.

Climate

We have a proud history of strong climate policies, but we need to keep making the argument for them loudly. I would make sure that we keep banging the drum and that we win this fight!

Standing up for young people.

Too often politics focuses on older parts of the population. I would fight for more policies which support young people, especially as the franchise is expanded to include 16-17 year olds.

Putting our values front and centre.

With Nigel Farage threatening the values we hold dear, and the other parties just nodding along we have to champion our values set out in the Constitution Preamble. I would push for us to fight for us to make the argument for Liberal values.

Why you should back Rory

I am the youngest County Councillor in Cambridgeshire

I gained Castle Division from Labour for the first time since 2009, because I understood the policies needed to win. I am now Vice-Chair of the Assets and Procurement Committee.

I am an experienced campaigner

I'm a member of East of England and Cambridge Campaigns Committees, I have fought every set of elections since I joined the party, I have led polling days for winning wards, and led canvass sessions to elect Pippa Heylings MP.

Background in Sustainability

My background in sustainability has given me a key understanding of climate change and the actions we should be taking to tackle it.

Taking the fight to Labour and the Green Party

With Labour failing in government, we need to win the splintering left wing vote. I did this in my election, and would push for it nationally.
