

WHY I WANT TO BE ON FCC

Conference is the beating heart of our party. After all, where other parties simply hand edicts down from on high, we do what liberals do best – debate, disagree, and find compromise.

Since I joined the party many years ago, conference has become a highlight of my political calendar. As a member of FCC, I want to do my bit to help others have the same wonderful experience I have at our conferences. More than that, I want each and every member who attends to feel empowered – knowing that their attendance, and their voting, has a direct impact on where our party goes and what it does next.

I have years of experience in event organisation and management, which I hope to bring to bear for the benefit of the party, should I be lucky enough to be elected to FCC.

WHAT I WANT TO DO

To be at its best, conference must be for everyone. As a member of FCC, I would work with colleagues to ensure our conferences, and their related events, are accessible to all. That means providing wheelchair access to all venues, ensuring quiet rooms are available and signposted for those who may need them, and working with all relevant groups within the party to ensure their needs are met.

I would also like to do what I can to further create space at conference for young, diverse, and international voices. As liberals, it is incumbent on us to ensure that our conferences are as diverse and representative as possible, with input from our young people, our international partners, and minority groups within our membership adding vital insight and value to proceedings.

Finally, I would like to see our policy and timetable planning process be as transparent as possible, providing meaningful reasoning for why certain topics and policies have, or have not, been allotted time on the conference floor.
