

Vote Alison EDEN for Federal Policy Committee

Alison Eden – putting public policy before personal politics

I promise that I will discuss honestly, collaboratively and co-operatively as a member of Federal Policy Committee. I will use my professional skills, benefitted by training on ethics committees, to contribute positively to our group thinking.

I will dedicate myself to deliver our party's goal that 'nobody should be enslaved by poverty, ignorance or conformity'

Alison Eden - my life so far...

- Church-going atheist with deep love of choral singing
- Can't hear you if not wearing my hearing aids
- Pays bills by working full-time in medical communications and research for 20+ years
- Vice Chair of NHS Research Ethics Committee

Alison Eden – some of my political escapades

- A teenage Liberal Ward Organiser trying to defeat Margaret Thatcher in Finchley
- 7 years' experience as Lib Dem Councillor
- NUJ trade union member (current)
- Raised Lib Dem vote share 2019 Gen Election as parliamentary candidate

Alison Eden – what drives me politically

- Celebrating what taxation does for communities
- Protecting people's health and human rights
- Saving our planet from politicians and destruction

I wanted to 'ban the bomb' back in the 1980s. Maybe still do, I'm not sure. I still want voting reform, more passionately than ever. I keep changing my mind about grammar schools. I think I'm still keen to stop them, and I definitely agree with some Labour policies. I'm loudly pro-rejoin the EU. I used to be reluctantly against the House of Lords, now I can't wait to get rid of it.
